PRODUCT USE AND DESCRIPTIONS

We want you to enjoy using Winslow® resources, activities and assessment tools and we very much hope that they will contribute to learning, therapy, rehabilitation and improve life quality for end users.

To aid selection of appropriate resources, we do our very best to give as much detail as possible in the space allowed and show good representative imagery. This may include safety or suitability age guidelines, dimensions, potential hazards (such as small parts), material information, or notable guidance from manufacturers. If more pictures, photographs, instructions or diagrams are available, we will elaborate on our website www.winslowresources.com.

We go to great lengths to provide products that are robust, of good quality and are safe, however, it is ultimately the facilitator's responsibility to check suitability for clients, family members or pupils, to supervise use at all times, ensure they are used with care, interacted with appropriately and are maintained. Products cannot stand misuse or abuse.

Additionally, Winslow® supplies professional specialist intervention equipment for healthcare and educational professionals for therapy or assessment. These should only be administered by suitably trained professionals.

MEET THE AUTHORS

We wanted to know more about the reasoning behind the development of some of our most popular resources. Alex Kelly (author of the popular Talkabout Series) kindly created a wonderful blog for our customers last year and we are delighted that Margot Sunderland, Jackie Pool, Gali Salpeter, and Jean DeGaetano have contributed material this year, so we are launching an Author Page online in 2019!

Symbolic Play Test

This is the 2nd Edition of this popular standardised assessment that uses structured observation of play to analyse early skills required for language development. The tool provides an objective indication of a young child's level of early concept formation and symbolisation – abilities that precede and develop alongside expressive and receptive language.

Four sets of miniature objects are presented in a set order, in different situations, enabling the facilitator to observe if the child relates to them appropriately. Objects are purposefully chosen and can lend themselves to a variety of interrelationships. The scoring system is based on the number of meaningful responses and connections the child is able to make. The outcomes of this test can be used to plan further appropriate interventions.

Contents: manual, toys and 25 record forms. Duration: 10-15 minutes. For 1-3 yrs.

The New Reynell Developmental Language Scales (NRDLS)

The NRDLS is the most widely used assessment and diagnostic tool for identifying speech and language delays and impairments in very young children. It has been standardised on more than 1,200 UK children, and the 4th edition content has been revised in line with latest research and practice. It is administered and highly regarded by teaching, health and research professionals.

It provides essential information about a child's production and understanding of spoken language, assesses communication skills on entry into nursery school and identifies those who need immediate referral and support. Two scales are used:

Scale 1: Language production: explores understanding of vocabulary items and grammatical features.

Scale 2: Comprehension: assesses the production of the same features of language.

- Straightforward to administer with an easy to use, easel format
- Uses a mix of play-based activities and a range of stimulus material, including a trio of new characters (Monkey, Teddy and Rabbit) with appealing full colour illustrations
- Overview of language ability guides intervention and evaluates the effectiveness of those interventions
- Multilingual toolkit, giving advice and guidance on how to adapt and use the NRDLS with children who have English as an Additional Language
- Duration: 35-60 minutes
- For 2-7yrs

CASP Communication Assessment Profile

CREATED BY AN SLT

The Communication Assessment Profile (CASP) is the only UK standardised assessment tool to assess the communication abilities of adults with severe to mild learning disabilities. It can be used with children and young people with ASD and with older people who have neurological disabilities as an outcome measure, to ascertain if communication skills have improved over time or as a research tool. It is comprehensive, using photographs of functional and adult-orientated objects and was designed as a joint multi-disciplinary assessment organised into three parts:

- The questionnaire (environment) determines the opportunities an individual has for communicating on a day to day basis (completed with a carer/keyworker)
- Photographic manual with subsections on hearing/auditory skills, understanding and use of communication (completed with an SLT)
- Record of strengths, percentile rank chart, communication environment rating scale and an outline of priorities for change (agreed by individual, therapist and carer/keyworker)

The National Institute for Adult Continuing Education (UK) recommends CASP as an appropriate assessment for adults with LD. Numerous SLTs have used CASP with people with Dementia, reporting that sections 3 and 7 were particularly useful for assessing vocabulary and communicative function. Note: CASP wasn't designed for people with Dementia but a small number of individuals participating in the clinical trials had age-associated cognitive impairment.

Meet The Author!Jean Gilliam DeGaetano

Speech and Language Pathologist (M.A. Combined SLP/Learning Disabilities) specialising in Auditory Processing/Language Acquisition.

"While working as an SLP, Jean created her own materials and articulation programmes ranging from sound correction to carryover and collected pictures to help children learn language skills and vocabulary that wasn't found in their home environment. Her school caseload ranged from simple sound correction to complex auditory processing issues, but her interest remained on supporting those with significant language delays. These students "blossomed" when pictures were used to explain new concepts or how things were used and observing their rapid improvement, what worked became very clear. Along with pictures, these students needed to have one goal at a time, directions that did not change constantly, and a considerable amount of practice with a concept in order to master it. There needed to be a picture that showed the answer to every question. Pictures and vocabulary could change, but the directions and style of questions needed to be basically the same in each lesson. Teachers and SLPs borrowed them, raved about their success, so the lessons were published."

Series: Make Play R.O.C.K.™

Plan for People Play

This is the first book in the Make Play R.O.C.K.™ series focuses on learning how to create the best possible play situations, encourage participation, communication and develop social interaction skills in a purposeful supportive way based on current research on what helps children learn best. "People Games" rely on engagement with others instead of focusing on toys and whilst playing, children learn key social skills that create the foundations for building successful relationships with others.

W955711

Take Out the Toys

The second book in the Make Play R.O.C.K.™ series focuses on expanding "functional play" ability (early play involving conventional or expected actions using toys). These skills provide a foundation for the formulation of later skills so it is important to optimise these as early as possible. Play for children who have Autism or other developmental challenges may not be as advanced as other children their age, but if these specific research-based techniques are used during everyday play activity, much can be done to build skill levels.

W955712

Put Pretending into your Child's Play

Children with additional needs often find it difficult to pretend, a stage of development that lays the foundation for key social and learning skills. This resource focuses on expanding pretend play skills during fun, everyday activities. It provides a context of how pretend play fosters language, social and emotional skills using research-based strategies. Identify each stage of pretend play, encourage imitation of new pretend play actions, identify when to move to the next developmental stage and encourage use of new skills with a variety of toys, in different situations.

Testimonial:

"My son has Autism. One thing he struggles with is food. He will only eat dry food which is crunchy, and will refuse to eat everything on his plate if anything which doesn't fit his specifications is on the plate alongside his "acceptable" foods. When we first introduced the Happy Mat Segmented Plate, we gave him his favourite foods in the main section and he usually refuses in the other sections. For the first couple of days, he ignored the broccoli. On day 3, he touched the broccoli and played with it a little, ripped a small piece off and tasted it too. He wouldn't eat it all, but he tried it and it didn't stop him eating the rest of his meal as it would have done on a "normal" plate. We use the mat to introduce new foods, and also to keep slightly wetter items away from dry ones. He has bagel for breakfast, and I added sliced apple to the eyes for him. He didn't touch the apple for a couple of days, but will now happily eat apple alongside his bagel at breakfast time. All told, we are very happy with the Happy Mat Segmented Plate, and I feel it has made a big difference to the way my son reacts to new foods. I'd definitely recommend it." Tina Bailey

The Blobs were created to enable and empower those who struggle with words, but want to share how they feel. They are clear and simple black and white line illustrations with no words, based on feelings and body language. These visual tools can be used to prompt discussion or simply pointed at to convey that these have struck a chord. Different from other emotional literacy tools, Blobs are neither male nor female, young nor old and devoid of culture. They don't guide on what should, shouldn't or ought to be done, or depict a problem to be solved or a message to be agreed, they just show how people may feel. Blobs have been used for over twenty years with small or large groups, in 1-1 sessions and individually, by different professions and are transferrable to learning and therapy settings.

The Blob Cards - Sets of 48

Each boxed 48 Card Pack features a specific life experience, such as bereavement, family, teenage life, behaviour, anger etc. These versatile resources enable adults and children in groups or 1-1 sessions to develop self-management skills and explore their feelings and reactions to situations that occur, through choice or spontaneously. These can be used as both educational and therapeutic tools to begin the process of change and healing.

Meet The Author!

Margot Sunderland

Director of the Institute for Arts in Therapy and Education. MA in Arts Psychotherapy, MA in Integrative Child Psychotherapy, trained as a secondary school teacher.

"This series was created to help children, teenagers and adults to stand back and think about their lives and then make sense of and process major life events that if left unprocessed can lead to mental and physical health problems.

In my work with very troubled children and teenagers straight forward conversation about feelings just often didn't work. With images, people engage and the change process often flows in remarkable ways. Using worksheets was far less shaming and they got really interested in the psychology of relationships with self and others which is embedded in the drawings. These can be spring boards to a really meaningful conversation that otherwise would not take place.

All are evidence-based and tested with various adults (the Emotion Cards resonate particularly with adults who often cannot stop looking at particular cards and holding them once they identify with them). The worksheets were used with teenagers in residential care and with adults, children and teenagers in private practice over many years."

NEW

"The cards are very powerful. Nicky is a stunning artist, she can capture the very essence of particular self states in ways that when you see them on the cards, grabs your attention as they really do speak about some of the most profound feelings we humans are capable of. Participants find utter relief in seeing key life experiences relationship experiences and self-states (which so often don't get talked about) there in front of them."

"The idea is that you lay out all the cards and then pick up the ones that really accurately represent you, your feelings, life or relationships. There are cards on the market but we haven't found any that really provide the emotional depth of the cards we have made, hence our motivation to do so. Humans don't have little feelings, they experience powerful, intense emotional states and they need these acknowledged. The cards do this."

"You do not need to be a trained, qualified and registered clinical professional to facilitate sessions using these resources, just to be able to listen really well, empathise, be totally non-judgemental and feed back that you have understand what the person is saying. Anyone could use the book to do a self-review of issues in their life, but the resources are best, I think, for practitioners who help people to look at their life, work through painful experiences and make life decisions. They can be used in groups, e.g. in a PSHE lesson on relationships that hurt/relationships that heal, leading to really good group discussions."

Meet The Author!

Gali Salpeter
Expressive Therapist (M.A.), specialising in drama and narrative therapy.

"My background is in psychology, sociology and anthropology. I have lived in different countries and worked with inspiring children, in settings of individual and group therapy. I began using projective cards as a psychological tool when working with children having special needs.

Combining cards with art, drama and stories proved to be very useful, helping clients raise and share issues they were dealing with. It supplemented the verbal mode of communication in many ways.

It is my hope that every person working with the sets will enjoy the opportunity of telling her/his story and the wonder of discovering its rich layers and intertwining chapters. We all have stories waiting to be told."

CASP Communication Assessment Profile

CREATED BY AN SLT

The Communication Assessment Profile (CASP) is the only UK standardised assessment tool to assess the communication abilities of adults with severe to mild learning disabilities. It can be used with children and young people with ASD and with older people who have neurological disabilities as an outcome measure, to ascertain if communication skills have improved over time or as a research tool. It is comprehensive, using photographs of functional and adult-orientated objects and was designed as a joint multi-disciplinary assessment organised into three parts:

- Questionnaire (environment) Determines the opportunities an individual has for communicating on a day to day basis (completed with a carer/keyworker)
 - Photographic manual with subsections on hearing/auditory skills, understanding and use of communication (completed with an SLT)
 - Record of strengths, percentile rank chart, communication environment rating scale and an outline of priorities for change (agreed by individual, therapist and carer/keyworker)
- The National Institute for Adult Continuing Education (UK) recommends CASP as an appropriate assessment for adults with LD. Numerous SLTs have used CASP with people with Dementia, reporting that sections 3 and 7 were particularly useful for assessing vocabulary and communicative function. Note: CASP wasn't designed for people with Dementia but a small number of individuals participating in the clinical trials had age-associated cognitive impairment.

Lip Blok® Straw Positioners

Lip Blok® straw positioners help discourage tongue thrusting, promote tongue retraction and correct overall tongue positioning. These oral motor tools also discourage straw biting and prevent users from pushing straws too far into the mouth. Press the chosen Lip Blok® into the top of a straw and then drink. For best results start with the longest, progress to the medium-sized and then the shortest, helping users put less and less straw into their mouths. When the shortest is used, fluid is deposited into the front of the mouth where it is easier to manage and less likely to cause coughing or aspiration. Shorter lengths facilitate more intense oral motor exercise, the tongue retracts more, the lips seal better and cheeks have more tension. Compatible with most regular straws (0.6cm). Material: medical grade, BPA, PVC, lead, phthalate and latex free. Use of these products should be supervised at all times. Small parts, for 3yrs+. Supervise use at all times. Dishwasher safe (note: drying cycle is too hot, so ensure this isn't used), hand wash or boil (just for a few minutes).

Lip Blok® Straw Positions

One-Way Select-Flow Straw Valves - Set of 3

This set of 3 Select-Flow Valves make drinking easier for individuals with oral motor difficulties. The direction of the fluid is controlled, it goes up the straw but it cannot flow back down, subsequently requiring less effort to drink. This design also reduces the amount of air ingested, therefore users experience reduced coughing or choking whilst consuming more fluids. If a restricted flow isn't necessary, simply trim the tapered end with a pair of scissors to increase flow. 4.4cmL. For thin liquids (water, milk, juice without pulp, etc) but not carbonated beverages. Compatible with most standard 0.6cmDia straws, but best used with the Sip-Tip® to allow fluid to be "helped" up the straw for the initial sip. Material: medical grade, BPA, PVC, lead, phthalate and latex free. Dishwasher safe. Small parts, for 3yrs+. Supervise use at all times.

Sip-Tip® Drinking Tumbler, Lid, Lip Blok & Straw Set

Designed to make drinking easier for those who have difficulties generating and maintaining suction. Inbuilt valves in each straw controls fluid flow, preventing it emptying back into the tumbler. Because liquid remains at the top, less air is ingested so less effort is required for each sip. Help, if needed can be given by "pumping" the fluid up the straw via the flexible lid - simply cover the vent hole with a finger, press down several times until liquid reaches the desired height. Ark Therapeutic state that Sip-Tip® users tend to experience less coughing and choking whilst consuming more fluids. Features: Snap on lid to minimise spillage and graduated marks to monitor fluid intake. A Lip Blok® prevents straw biting, helps decrease tongue protrusion, promoting correct tongue and lip positioning. Holds 227ml. Feedback from an OT assistant, using the "Colors" book.
 Feedback: Patient has a short attention span so it was great to be able to "skip" from one object/topic to another as objects were irrelevant to each other (except having some colour). Patient was engaged for 45 mins!! The patient enjoyed looking at the colourful pictures... although struggled at times to link the word with the pictured object. She loved the picture of a monkey and became very animated and humorous after seeing it. Patient also read short lyrics next to the pictures and enjoyed it.

Jackie Pool

Occupational Therapist, specialising in Dementia

Director of Memory Care, Sunrise Senior Living UK

"In 1999, I developed the Pool Activity Level (PAL) Instrument with the encouragement and mentorship of Professor Tom Kitwood because I was convinced that a more helpful view of dementia is to identify the ability level of each individual.

With that viewpoint, we are likely to enable rather than disable the person as we understand the physical and social environment required to sustain those abilities. If we only recognise the difficulties an individual is having, we will always disable them as we will only provide care and support to address their difficulties. So, the PAL Instrument using a strengths based approach, underpinned by cognitive developmental theory.

The first draft of the PAL Instrument was tested out in a local hospital ward for people living with severe dementia and also in care homes where people were living with early to moderate dementia. In 2008, the PAL Instrument Checklist was validated by Jennifer Wenborn and team at the Department of Mental Health Sciences, University College London. The book is now in its 4th edition, with additions to the case studies and guidance on the use of the PAL.

PAL is translated into several languages and is used within research programmes and also in health and social care settings to support care and activity planning. I regularly receive wonderful messages from care professionals telling me of the difference that using the PAL Instrument has made to their service and the positive impact it has had on enabling people with dementia and other forms of cognitive impairment, including acquired brain injury, stroke and, learning disability to live meaningful and fulfilling lives."

New USB stick version!

The Pool Activity Level (PAL) Instrument for Occupational Profiling

Developed by leading Occupational Therapist, Jackie Pool, the Pool Activity Level (PAL) instrument has become the framework for UK care settings for people with conditions related to dementia, stroke and learning disabilities.

The PAL Instrument is a valid and reliable tool for assessing and guiding the right level of care and support to individual's with cognitive difficulties. It is recommended in the National Clinical Practice Guideline for Dementia (NICE, 2006), for activities of daily living and for leisure activity.

The PAL instrument automatically produces a comprehensive individualised PAL Guide for download which describes how to support the person in 5 activities: washing, dressing, dining, interaction and leisure activities with information about the individual's name, preferences, routines and likes or dislikes in each activity.

Choose:

A paper based version which includes the tool itself and photocopyable activity checklists and plans to enable matching of clients' abilities with appropriate activities.

A USB stick version for unlimited use on a single computer. The Checklist is quick to complete as an electronic assessment that automatically identifies the resident's level of cognitive ability and the resulting PAL Guide is automatically produced.

Location Learning Test (LLT)

The LLT helps diagnose Dementia, amnesia and mild memory deficits. Can be administered to those with Aphasia as it does not rely on verbal responses. Evaluates the ability to learn spatial locations of everyday objects and offers a measure of learning through repeated testing and a measure of delayed recall. By combining these, clinicians can identify those likely to be suffering with learning and/or difficulty retaining new spatial information. The delayed recall trial is useful for identifying dementia patients from the normal aging process. By purchasing this resource, you are affirming that you are a registered healthcare professional and appropriately trained to carry out this clinical intervention.

For 18 – 96 years. Administration time: 20-30 minutes. Includes picture cards, scoring forms and carry box.

The UnGame & Pocket UnGame for Seniors

A versatile resource developed after the inventor had throat surgery and thought she would never speak again. Rhea devised her own ways of communicating and was forced to listen to others and watch them interacting. She realised that people weren't listening to each other properly. Rhea wrote every question

Rhea found she could express her feelings and no-one walked away during the game, when people did at other times. Upon testing, families learned more about each other in a few minutes than they had done in years and was in demand from anyone who played it. UnGame is non-competitive, there are no losers, no complicated strategies. For 2-8 players. Can be used for speech therapy, group activities, education etc.
